Curt Hammond Intro

He was no more than 10 years old when Curt Hammond first heard Four Simple Words from his grandmother. Her wisdom has stuck with him ever since and has fundamentally changed how he thinks and leads at home, work and as a community leader.

Now at the halfway point on his journey of life, Curt is ready to start sharing these words with anyone who will listen. As a father, volunteer and business owner Curt has seen first-hand how Four Simple Words build caring communities, sustainable organizations and loving homes. Curt hopes to create a new leadership movement with the goal of redefining what it means to be in service to others. With input from hundreds of leaders, he is developing the concept of Service Leadership as a tool to rethink how we look after ourselves, support those around us and inspire meaningful change. All at the same time.

Curt is personally and professionally based in the beautiful village of Elora Ontario. He is the lucky husband to Melanie and the very proud dad to Sky and Jay. When he's not talking about Service Leadership, Curt is the Chief Listening Officer at Pearl Street Communications, leading the team of marketing, facilitation, training and coaching professionals passionate about #ChangeMaking work.
